Enough Power by High Tension Line

Help Coming Soon for South Windham Station—Will Give Power for Baltic to Willimantic Trolley

An adequate supply of the electric fluid and consequent relief for the section of the Connecticut company's trolley line between Baltic and Willimantic will be afforded as soon as the new high tension line from the South Windham station is completed, and this may possibly be about Aug. 15th, according to Superintendent Joseph Wedge, who is in charge of the work for the New England Construction company. Since the South Windham power station was disabled by a severe thunder storm early last month only the short dinky cars have been run between Baltic and Willimantic because of the lack of power and the users of that part of the line will be heartily glad to have the full supply of juice again so that the big cars can be run once more.

Superintendent Wedge has twelve men at work in three gangs, one at the Tataville tunnel, one at Baltic and one at South Windham. The three wires which make up the line are all strung from Tataville to South Windham and the electric power from windmills of which there are eighteen in that distance. Ten have been done since the first of July and there are eight more to be done between the Tataville tunnel and the South Windham station. Ever since the work has been pushed early last month it has been held up by the non-arrival of the special crossing stuff, which only came the first of July, and also by the difficulty of getting experienced men for this, as to put these in the line in the change of the more than ordinary line.

The distance to be wired was about twenty miles, which part was over private right of way from the tunnel to a point a mile and a half above Versailles, from which point the railroad was followed to the South Windham station. The work of setting the poles needed above the tunnel was begun the last week in May. This side of the tunnel the poles for the Jewett City line to Thameville were used.

As soon as these special crossings are finished, connection can be made at the South Windham power house, which will be a great relief to the supply of the electric power from Thameville, and the Baltic to Willimantic section of the trolley road will have all the power needed.

WON MERIT CUP.

Manager Flawdow Beat Out N. B. C. Rivals.

Manager Robert L. Flawdow and his staff at the local depot of the National Biscuit company are exhibiting with pride in their window on Franklin street the silver merit cup awarded for the period to June 30th by the home office. The Norwich staff was in competition with a group of fourteen agencies, including such places as Worcester, Springfield, Providence and New Bedford, and to win such a strong competitor is quite a feat in the cup of the local man.

In the preceding period when Providence was the city to which the cup was awarded on a percentage basis for gain in business and general work, the Norwich staff was in competition with a group of fourteen agencies, including such places as Worcester, Springfield, Providence and New Bedford, and to win such a strong competitor is quite a feat in the cup of the local man.

Burst Shows Old Fashioned Water Pipe. Superintendent Burdick and a gang of workmen from the water department had an all night job Wednesday at Peck's corner, where a blow out at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the pipe which runs through East Town street. Notice of the burst was received at the water office by telephone and as Superintendent Burdick happened to be there at the time he hurried to the scene and found the water running out of a hole in the pipe which was about six inches in diameter. The water was found to be in a section of the old stovepipe coated with cement, inside and out, which was put down at the time the reservoir was built. It was not supposed any of this pipe was still in the city system, but this section was not replaced when the new pipe of six inch size. This will be done at once to give water to this section of East Town street, which is now shut off.

Long Drought Broken.
Norwich people gladly got out their long unused umbrellas on Wednesday evening, when the first sprinkling of rain appeared about 7:30 o'clock, breaking the long drought. Early in the evening, when the first sprinkling of rain came on, in intermittent showers, but after midnight and in the early morning hours of Thursday, the fall was copious and steady. At Lincoln park there was a heavy shower in the early evening, and in New London it was reported there was a hard rain all night.

Moving Three Ton Safe.
The job of moving a three ton safe from the cellar of a Boston store, where the fire was, to the second story of the present store attracted considerable attention on Wednesday morning when the first sprinkling of rain came on, in intermittent showers, but after midnight and in the early morning hours of Thursday, the fall was copious and steady. At Lincoln park there was a heavy shower in the early evening, and in New London it was reported there was a hard rain all night.

YACHT FLEET DISBANDED.
Joint Cruise of Seawanhaka of New York and Corinthian of Philadelphia Ends.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4.—Past Brenton's Reef lightship there sped late today the racing fleet of a score of yachts participating in the annual cruise of the Seawanhaka-Yacht club of New York and the Corinthian club of Philadelphia. Leaving at 8 p. m. the yachts of the several cruises of the season, the old cup defender Vigilant, now yawl rigged and owned by W. E. Iselin, covered the 37-mile course in 4 hours, 34 minutes, 1 second. The start had been made from New London during the forenoon.

Fifteen minutes late the sloop Albatross, owned by Cord Meyer, crossed the line. Among the Class M sloops the competition was keen, less than half a dozen yachts being entered in the class. A time allowance of 1 minute, 47 seconds gave the victory to the Albatross, owned by J. S. O'Rourke, showed her heels to the field, having a five minute margin at the finish. The Seawanhaka, owned by J. S. O'Rourke, was in a special race. The winners in other classes were the Polaris in Class M for yawls, the Princess in Class M for sloops and the Reliance in Class B for the fleet disbanded here today.

NIGHT SESSION OF SENATE.
Difficulty Encountered in Rounding up Quorum—Adjourns at 11:42.

Washington, Aug. 4.—It looked as if the senate had gone on a "strike" when the hour to reassemble arrived tonight. Vice President Sherman rapped the roll and ordered the yeas and nays. A quorum of 60 senators was present at the first session of the night.

The suggestion for a night session was made by Senator Bailey, possibly for the purpose of permitting the discussion of the tariff bill, the criticism of the tariff bill, Senator Aldrich and other senators did not take kindly to the idea of sitting up late to hear the speaker at 9 o'clock of the Rhode Island senator was one of those whose absence was noted.

After nearly half an hour had passed without a quorum it was decided to adjourn until 11:42. The senate adjourned until 11:42 o'clock tomorrow.
